Having played a large part in the creation of the very first specialist speaker cables and with over 47 years of unrivalled engineering excellence and expertise in the fields of hi fi, home cinema cables and connectivity, no other company has demonstrated such relentless dedication to research and development combined with analytical listening tests.

QED is proud to introduce XT3 power cable, the latest in a new generation of audiophile power cables intended to complement its award winning range of speaker cables and audio interconnects.

The new cord set features a number of proprietary technologies applied with regard to objective scientific research and subjective evaluation, to bring an audible improvement in performance.

KEY FEATURES

- ▶ X-Tube™ technology
- ▶ Supremely flexible
- ▶ Complete impedance stability

QED XT3 Power Cable

With X-Tube™ technology

With X-Tube™ technology applied to XT3 power cable, fewer distortions caused by modulation of the impedance of the cable will affect current flow to audio equipment and so are less likely to find their way into the music.

Without the a cable such as this to feed it with clean noise-free current, any amplifier will sound glassy and hard with less ability to respond to musical transients, giving a lack of dynamics and weak bass performance.

Finally, with the quality assurance of a fully type-tested design it can be relied upon to safely bring audible improvements to the sound of both source equipment and audiophile amplification components alike.

SPECIFICATIONS

Outside diameter	10.2 mm
Metallurgy	99.999% oxygen-free copper
Cross-sectional area	1.5mm ²
Dielectric strength	2 kV (a.c for 15 mins)
Complies with	EN 50525, EN 60320, EN 60884
